HISTORY OF THE RESSMAN FAMILY

The first Ressman to come to America was Ed Ressman and his wife, Sonya Hirshkovitz. He was a peddler and scrap dealer who settled in Chicago and then in Appleton, Wisconsin, where we went to look out for the Greenbergs, who were relatives of his wife. He started the first shul in Appleton in his home.

Ed Ressman had a brother and a sister. His brother was David Moses Ressman, who was a tailor in Nikolief, Russia, where he and his family made uniforms for the Tsar's army. David Moses would whip his children to say their prayers and then help tailor the uniforms. David Moses Ressman was married to Hinda Pessin, daughter of Harry Pessin, who was a chazan and shogut. Her brother, Nathan Pessin, was a magid, or storyteller, and they were a well educated family. Hinda's mother was Esther Skolnick Pessin.

Hinda was deaf, a condition passed on to some degree in some of her children. She was also blinded in one eye as a result of a freak accident. While outside one day, she was struck in the eye by a kite some children were playing with and as a result she lost the sight in that eye. She was also clubbed about the head by some Cossacks when she was a young woman in Russia, and this may have contributed to her deafness.

Ed Ressman had a sister, Ida who died in Europe leaving one daughter, Rose. Ed and Sonya had no children of their own, so they adopted Rose, who later married Mickey Schur and had children of her own.

Ed Ressman sent a ticket to Rose and his niece, Rebecca Ressman, so they could come to America, but Rebecca gave her ticket to her fiancé, Isadore Bahcall, and he came over with Rose. Ed Ressman took Isadore Bahcall into his scrap business in Appleton, and this business later became I. Bahcall, Inc.

David Moses and Hinda Ressman had thirteen children, but only seven of them lived. The children were: Rachel (1865), Joseph (1867), Abram (), Louis (), Rebecca (1881), Harry (1886), and Leon ().

Abram Ressman and his wife, Celia, and Joseph Ressman and his wife, Jennie, and their children, together with Rachel's husband, David Beilen, came to America in 1902. Rachel and their children followed in 1903 along with David Moses and Hinda Ressman and the rest of the children. The Ressimans came "tourist class" and Rachel and the children came "steerage". During the voyage, the children were passed up over a gate to spend a little time with their grandparents. The boat, which may have been called "Saxonia" landed in Baltimore, Maryland. The families then traveled on to Chicago, where they settled.

The Ressimans founded a company called Acme Manufacturing in Chicago, which made parts of suits, but there was so much fighting within the family that the business didn't last. All the Ressman brothers worked in the tailoring trade. Rachel scrubbed floors for 50¢.

Harry Ressman went to work for Hart, Shaffner, & Marx, a manufacturer of men's clothing in Chicago after the closing of Acme Manufacturing. There he met Sarah Spector, another employee, and married her. On their honeymoon, they went to visit his sister, Rebecca Bahcall, in Appleton, Wisconsin and decided they liked it there. They moved there with no money and no job, but went into tailoring for the people of the town and eventually opened a men's clothing store which they called "Ressman's Clothiers". Harry and Sarah had two daughters, Diana Ressman (1910) and Esther "Jere" Ressman (1914). Diana married Ben Rusky, a salesman. They had one son, Alan Rusky (1942), who married Annette Baron of Appleton, and has two children: Brenda Jaye Rusky (1969) and Jamie Michelle Rusky (1971). Both Harry and his wife, Sarah, worked in the men's clothing store, and later so did Diana and Ben Rusky. Today the store is still carried on by Diana's son, Alan Rusky. Alan's wife, Annette, also works in the store. Their one employee is Jared "Jerry" Bailin, who is a great grandson of Harry's sister, Rachel. Jere married Sander Rosenblum, an immigrant from Sweden. Sander owned a ladies clothing store in Appleton called "The Rose Shop", and Jere helped work in the store. They had one son, Martin Rosenblum (1946), who is a poet and English professor living in Milwaukee. Martin is married to Maureen Rice, and they have a daughter, Sara Terez Rosenblum (1979). Harry died in 1976.

Leon Ressman went for a while to Green Bay, Wisconsin, and opened a men's clothing store in partnership with his nephew, Joe Bailin. This venture did not last long, and Leon moved back to Chicago. He married Rose Vanetsky and they had three children: Sylvia Ressman (1900), Ruth Ressman (1912), and Ezra Ressman (1915). Sylvia married Marcus Slaferman, a dress pattern grader. They shortened their name to "Slafer" and had two children: Howard Slafer (1939) and Lois Slafer (1946). Howard Slafer is a salesman for Minolta Camera Company in Hightstown, New Jersey. He married Linda Mc Neil and had three children: James Slafer (1963), Richard Slafer (1966), and Ilana Slafer (1970). This marriage ended in divorce. Lois Slafer is a travel consultant in Phoenix, Arizona. She is married to Joel Miller, formerly an El Al pilot, now in the home building business (Brentwood Builders) in Phoenix. Their children are Mazie Miller (1973) and Russell Jason Miller (1978). Ruth Ressman married Maurice Leavitt, owner of a dental supply business in Chicago. They have two daughters: Marilyn Leavitt (1937) and Lynda Leavitt (1941). Marilyn, a high school teacher, married Bernard Moltz, an attorney, and lives in Highland Park, Illinois. They have one son, Samuel Moltz (1976). Lynda, who lives in Niles, Illinois, married Sherwin Klein, a chemist. They have three children: Eric Klein (1967), Stephen Klein (1969), and Kimberly Rose Klein (1976). Ezra Ressman, who is deceased, was an attorney in Chicago. He never married.

Rachel Ressman was the eldest child of Hinda and David Moses Ressman. She and all of her brothers and sisters were born in Nikolief, Russia. Rachel was born in 1865 and died in Chicago in 1954. She

Joseph Ressman married Jennie Joseph, who was a niece of the mother-in-law of his sister, Rachel. They met at the wedding of Rachel and David Beilen. Joseph and Jennie had seven daughters: Lottie, Pauline, Rose, Flora, Dorothy, Celia, and Faye. All the daughters remained in the Chicago area except Lottie, who married Joseph Burstein and lived in Neenah, Wisconsin. Joe Burstein was in the paper business, and they had three children: Myrtle Burstein (1915), Victor Samuel Burstein (1919), and Meyer Lewis Burstein (1926). Myrtle Burstein married and divorced Fred Eisenstadt. She moved back with her parents after her divorce, and died suddenly in 1974 shortly after the death of her mother. Victor Burstein is owner of a foundry in Albion, Michigan, and was at one time the Mayor of Albion. He married Margery Weiner and had Paul Burstein (1947), John Burstein (1952), and Stephen Burstein (1953). Paul is married to Sharon Johnson and father of Sarah Elise Burstein (1972) and Aaron Joseph Burstein (1974) and is a gynecologist in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Meyer Burstein, an economist, married Mavis Cole, who died a few years after their marriage at the age of 35. In 1978, Meyer married Milka Katz, an Israeli with two children. Meyer lives in New York City, after residing for several years in England and France. Pauline, the second daughter, married Phillip Berns, a retail clothing salesman. They had two sons, Robert Berns and Marvin Berns. Robert Berns married Ruth Genser and had a daughter, Phyllis Berns, who is married to Clark Anderson, and twin sons, Glenn Berns and Stephen Berns. Robert is a salesman, and Marvin (1926) is an antique dealer who is unmarried. Rose, the third daughter, married Alan Marcus, a tailor, and had one son, Richard Marcus (1935), who is in the insurance business in Los Angeles, Ca. Richard married an Iranian girl named Parnia Bahador, but was divorced. They had a son, Alan Marcus (1963). Flora, the fourth daughter, married Harry Richman, a salesman, but was divorced. They had a son, Byron Richman (1923) who is a salesman living in Dallas, Texas. Byron is unmarried. Dorothy, the fifth daughter, married Morris Abelman, who was in the wholesale produce business. He was a widower with two young daughters, Lynne and Elaine. Elaine died at the age of twelve years. Lynne (1928-1972) married Nathan Browdy and had Elena Browdy (1951) and Steven Browdy (1956). Nathan Browdy died in 1975, three years after the death of Lynne. Dorothy and Morris had a daughter of their own, Joan Abelman (1935), who is a supervisor and teacher at a nursery school in Chicago. Joan married Robert Goldberg, an assistant high school principal and teacher in Chicago, and they have two children, Michael Goldberg (1961) and Daniel Goldberg (1963). Dorothy Ressman Abelman was born in 1903 and died in 1970; Morris Abelman was born in 1901 and died in 1959. The Goldbergs live in Niles, Illinois. Celia, the sixth daughter, married Milton Less, a bookkeeper, and they had two sons, Howard Less (1926) and Donald Less (1930). Howard, who lives in Morton Grove, Illinois, is regional sales manager for a photo equipment distributor. He is married to Carol Goldstein, and has three children: Ellen Janice Less (1950), David Joseph Less (1953), and Steven Irving Less (1956). Ellen Less married Howard Fried, a bakery paper jobber and distributor, and has two children: Matthew Fried (1974) and Gregory Fried (1976). David Less is an urban planning director, and Steven Less is a financial analyst. Donald Less, who also lives in

Shorts

His undies in a bundle over this

A line in one of the novels of Max Shulman, writer of humor who was popular in the 1950s and '60s, says, "A man's shorts are his castle." Shulman was a spokesman for his times, but those times have changed. The "designers," those interior decorators of human exteriors, have invaded the castle.

The result of the invasion is that, if you haven't visited the men's underwear department at your favorite store for some time, the next time you do you may think you made a wrong turn somewhere, in life or when you walked in the store.

What are we talking about here? Mostly, we're talking about unmentionables for men. We're talking about skivvies, shorts and BVDs. We're talking about underpants.

For guys who grew up with plain white briefs or baggy boxers, it is more than the future-shocked brain can take. It is a matter of choice most men never asked to make.

A lot of men, for example, weren't happy when suddenly they were faced with the need to decide between 100% cotton and a polyester blend. Underwear is a habitual thing. There's no reason to buy something different as long as what you are buying works. If you don't think about your underwear, it is working.

Most males, by the time they reach puberty, have made the basic decision — briefs or boxers — and

HISTORY OF THE RESSMAN FAMILY

The first Ressman to come to America was Ed Ressman and his wife, Sonya Hirshkovitz. He was a peddler and scrap dealer who settled in Chicago and then in Appleton, Wisconsin, where we went to look out for the Greenbergs, who were relatives of his wife. He started the first shul in Appleton in his home.

Ed Ressman had a brother and a sister. His brother was David Moses Ressman, who was a tailor in Nikolief, Russia, where he and his family made uniforms for the Tsar's army. David Moses would whip his children to say their prayers and then help tailor the uniforms. David Moses Ressman was married to Hinda Pessin, daughter of Harry Pessin, who was a chazan and shogut. Her brother, Nathan Pessin, was a magid, or storyteller, and they were a well educated family. Hinda's mother was Esther Skolnick Pessin.

Hinda was deaf, a condition passed on to some degree in some of her children. She was also blinded in one eye as a result of a freak accident. While outside one day, she was struck in the eye by a kite some children were playing with and as a result she lost the sight in that eye. She was also clubbed about the head by some Cossacks when she was a young woman in Russia, and this may have contributed to her deafness.

Ed Ressman had a sister, Ida who died in Europe leaving one daughter, Rose. Ed and Sonya had no children of their own, so they adopted Rose, who later married Mickey Schur and had children of her own.

Ed Ressman sent a ticket to Rose and his niece, Rebecca Ressman, so they could come to America, but Rebecca gave her ticket to her fiance, Isadore Bahcall, and he came over with Rose. Ed Ressman took Isadore Bahcall into his scrap business in Appleton, and this business later became I. Bahcall, Inc.

David Moses and Hinda Ressman had thirteen children, but only seven of them lived. The children were: Rachel (1865), Joseph (1867), Abram (), Louis (), Rebecca (1881), Harry (1886), and Leon ().

Abram Ressman and his wife, Celia, and Joseph Ressman and his wife, Jennie, and their children, together with Rachel's husband, David Beilen, came to America in 1902. Rachel and their children followed in 1903 along with David Moses and Hinda Ressman and the rest of the children. The Ressmans came "tourist class" and Rachel and the children came "steerage". During the voyage, the children were passed up over a gate to spend a little time with their grandparents. The boat, which may have been called "Saxonia" landed in Baltimore, Maryland. The families then traveled on to Chicago, where they settled.

The Ressmans founded a company called Acme Manufacturing in Chicago, which made parts of suits, but there was so much fighting within the family that the business didn't last. All the Ressman brothers worked in the tailoring trade. Rachel scrubbed floors for 50¢.

6. Nathan MALYN (MALINOVSKY).

Grandpa Leon went into business in Pontiac by opening a cleaning and dyeing plant. His first machines were operated by hand and he worked very hard. Eventually he opened a plant on the main street of the town, and had a very successful business.

Two and one half years after Sylvia was born they had another daughter and her name was Ruth. Their third child was a son called Ezra.

The town was not very large, but was the county seat. There were about 6 Jewish families in the town, and they were all very friendly. The Sack's and the Moshines were closest to us as we would get together for for any Holidays and week end events.

When Sylvia was about 10 years old it was decided to move from Pontiac as Leon was getting ill from the gasoline fumes with which he had to work every day in the cleaning plant. It was decided to goto Green Bay Wisconsin and a cousin Joe Bailen went into a retail clothing business with Leon.

We had a nice house with 3 bedrooms, a bathroom, kitchen dining room and living room. Also a large back yard where Rose had a big vegetable garden every summer. It was during this time that our Grandmother Machla Vanetsky passed away after surgery for gall blader. When this happened Grandpa Louis Vanetsky came to live with us.

We lived in Green Bay until about 1924. At that time there was a depression and the Clothing Store failed. Grandpa went to work in Chicago, and left Grandma with the children until he could get located, as they then decided to move back to Chicago.

When we moved back to Chicago we lived at 3253 W. Montrose Avenue where Grandpa opened a tailor shop and we lived in back of the store where we had a small apartment. Sylvia went to High School, Ruth & Ezra to grammar school. Those were struggling years, but we were a very happy family, and never really thought that we were missing very much. We had many friends, and everyone congregated at our house in the evenings and on week ends.

Everyone graduated High School, but Ezra went on to College at the downstate University of Illinois. Ruth and Sylvia went to work and we helped to put our brother through college. These were still depression days, and money was not easy to come by. When he graduated from Pre-Law he continued on at De Paul University to study law. After graduation he took the exams and passed the State Law Exam to become a full fledged lawyer. He opened a law office with his friends Mor Levin and Jerry Blonder. It was rough going for many years. When the 2nd World War came Ezra went into service, and sent back his army pay to keep the law office going. His partners also maintained the office as they were not drafted.

I shall relate this story as well as I can remember the facts as told to me by my Mother and Father, Rose and Leon Ressman.

My grandfather and Grandmother (My mother's parents) must have arrived from somewhere in Russia between 1870 and 1880. Rose was an only child born to my grandparents as any other children did not survive birth or early childhood. Rose was raised on the south side of Chicago in a district called Englewood. Grandpa was Louis Vanetsky, and Grandma was Machla (Mary in English) Vanetskey. She was a small woman and as I remember her was plump. Grandpa was kind of tall, and always wore a mustache and a little Van Dyke beard. Grandpa was a junk peddler, and with his horse and wagon rode the streets of Englewood picking up and buying junk which he sold to the junk yards which existed in those days. They never had a lot of money and as it was customary at that time Grandma always had a boarder living in the house to help pay the rent. I remember a man who lived in their home, and my mother used to tell me that he was ~~my~~ like a big brother to her. Many years later I even got to know him and his children. Grandma's maiden name was Rifkin.

My mother had a very happy loving childhood. The only thing that happened to her was that one day she fell off a second floor porch when she was about 9 years old. They didn't know until some time later that she had broken her knee cap. She had many operations on that knee, but came through them all. The ankle always gave her trouble as she ~~was~~ wanted to do the things the others girls did, and used her leg too much and in that way injured her ankle. Altho she had a slight limp it never stopped her from raising her three children, and doing all the things that a housewife in those days had to do to maintain a busy household. Grandma always told me she had a good singing voice, and was also was very good in arithmetic.

When Grandma was about 16 years old she met her husband to be - Leon Ressman. Grandpa came from a family of 7 children 2 girls and 5 boys, and Grandpa Leon was the youngest of them all. His older brothers ~~xxxxxx~~ wife Celia was a friend of my grandmother and one day he came with them to visit the Vanetsky's. They tell the story that Grandma who was then 16 was sitting on her mother's lap drinking tea out of a saucer, and he wasn't very impressed with her, and thought she acted like a baby. Still with all that they eventually started to date, and when they were both 19 years old they had a big wedding. In those days the parents of the bride really made the wedding to the extent that Grandma Vanetsky even plucked all the chickens, and helped to prepare them for the wedding.

Grandpa Leon was a tailor as was his father and all his brothers. They were married in 1909, and Sylvia their first child was born in May 28, 1910. It was shortly after that they decided to move from Chicago due to labor problems in the clothing industry. They chose to move to a small town in downstate Illinois (about 90 miles South of Chicago). I think at that time Sylvia was about a year old. When Leon came to the United States from Russia with his family he was about 10 years old. He went to school for a while to learn the language and to read and write, but shortly after that at a very young age was sent out to work in the tailor shops run by his older brothers.

Eva Bailin (1895) married David Herman, a milkman, and had Muriel Herman (1923) and Herbert Herman (1928). Muriel Herman married Ed Wein, a butcher in Chicago, and had no children. Herbert Herman, an executive for the Illinois Drug Control Bureau, married Fay Sperling, a social worker, and had Clifford Herman (1959) and David Herman (1967). Eva died in 1951.

Joseph Bailin (1897) married Betty Leibowitz, who was a friend of his sister, Eva, and moved to Appleton, Wisconsin where he went to work for his uncle, I. Bahcall, in the scrap metal and steel business. They had two children: David Bailin (1927) and Helen Bailin (1929). David married Violet Schram, who he met at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, and they had Larry Bailin (1952), Stuart Bailin (1955), Jared "Jerry" Bailin (1958), and Jo Ann Bailin (1962). Helen married Ivor Lewis, a native of Dublin, Ireland, and they had Donna Lewis (1957), Anita Lewis (1959), and Rachel Lewis (1962). Both David and Ivor went to work at I. Bahcall, Inc. in Appleton, but after the death of Joseph (1958), they spun off one part of it and became partners in a plastics supply company called "Eagle Supply & Plastics, Inc." Their wives, Violet and Helen, also work in the business part time. Larry Bailin, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and of Harvard Law School, is an attorney with a large law firm in Tampa, Florida. Stuart Bailin, a business graduate of the University of Wisconsin, works with his father and uncle at Eagle Supply. Jerry Bailin works as a retail salesman in Ressman's Men's Clothing Store in Appleton. This is the same store which was started by Harry Ressman, a brother of his great-grandmother, which is presently owned by Harry's grandson, Alan Rusky. The other children are still students. Soon Jerry will change jobs to join Eagle Supply.

Bertha Bailin (1900) married Harry Goldstein, who was an executive in the advertising business for thirty-seven years. During the depression, Harry left his job and opened a small grocery store in Chicago. They had two children: David "Doodie" Goldstein (1923) and Bette Ruth Goldstein (1929). David married Elaine Osherman and had three children: Judith Goldstein (1952), a teacher, who married Edward Steffen and had a son, James William Steffen (1979) and lives in Tulsa, Oklahoma; Stuart Goldstein (1956), who manages a restaurant in Chicago; and John Goldstein (1959), a student. David and Elaine live in Glencoe, Illinois. David works as a salesman and Elaine is a mathematics teacher. Bette Ruth married Kenneth Frankel, but was divorced shortly before he died in 1972. They had a children's store. They have two adopted children, Michael Frankel (1960) and Lynn Frankel (1967). Bette Ruth works as an administrative assistant in the office of Rand Mc Nally, and lives in Skokie, Illinois.

Sadie Bailin (1902) became retarded after a bout of measles as an infant. She lived with her sister, Bertha, for many years until her death in 1969.

Abram Bailin (1905) died at the age of 51. He was also retarded.

Shaindl Bailin was the first born of Rachel's children, but died as an infant.

was married in Russia to David Beilen, whose father was a farmer and mayor of Kolonia (or Bohakuv). Her parents did not approve of the marriage because David Beilen was in poor health. She and her children came to America in 1903, a year after her husband.

David Beilen went to Appleton, Wisconsin to work for Ed Ressiman, Rachel's uncle, and boarded with his sister-in-law, Rebecca Bahcall. He did not like Appleton, so he moved back to Chicago where he worked as a tailor for his father-in-law, David Ressiman. He went to Denver for his health at the age of 38 in 1905, and died there a year later of tuberculosis of the throat.

David and Rachel Beilen had seven children: Esther, Bessie, Eva, Joseph, Bertha, Sadie, and Abram. All were born in Nikolief, Russia, except the youngest, Abram. When the children were in school in Chicago, Joseph decided they should change the spelling of the name to "Bailin" so it would look more like it sounded and so make it easier for the teachers.

Esther Bailin (1891) married Alex Levy, a hat maker. They had Howard "Ollie" Leslie (1914), Shirley Levy (1917), and David "Buddy" Levy (1921). Ollie changed his last name to Leslie, is a salesman in Chicago and married to Estelle Mansowitz, a secretary. They had Donald Leslie (1943) and Judith Leslie (1947). Donald Leslie, an electrical engineer in Las Cruces, New Mexico, married Patricia Stauffer and is father of Elizabeth Leslie (1971). Judy Leslie is a social worker in Chicago. Shirley Levy, formerly a bookkeeper, married Bernard Kaplan, an engraver, and lives in Lincolnwood, a suburb of Chicago. They had Susan Kaplan (1946) an education specialist in Chicago; Robert Kaplan (1950), an executive in the asphalt construction business who is married to Susan Levey and father of Toby Kaplan (1972) and Aaron Kaplan (1979). and Rochel Kaplan (1954). Buddy Levy is an interior decorator living in New York. He is unmarried.

Bessie Bailin (1892) married Frank Kritzberg, a printer. They had David "Davey" Kritzberg and Mildred Kritzberg. Davey (1913) who works in a grocery store in Chicago, married Barbara Bagby, a nurse. Davey and Barbara had two children and were later divorced. Their son, Richard Kritzberg (1946) manages a grocery store market. Richard was married for seven months to Betsy La Buda, and after his divorce he married Luanne Loesch and had Jeffrey Kritzberg (1977). They live in Highland Park, Illinois. Davey's daughter, Nancy Kritzberg (1952) married Roger Bythewood, a Navy medical corpsman, and had David Bythewood (1976) and Barbara Bythewood (1978). The Bythewoods live in Puerto Rico. After his divorce from Barbara, Davey married Ruby Butler. The other child of Bessie and Frank, Mildred Kritzberg (1927) married Howard Sherf, a maintenance man. They have no children. After Frank Kritzberg died, Bessie married Leo Kuklin, who was in the construction business. Leo had a daughter from a previous marriage named Dorothy, who married Gilbert Silverstein, later the Rabbi in Appleton for many years. Bessie died in 1977.

HISTORY OF THE RESSMAN FAMILY

The first Ressman to come to America was Ed Ressman and his wife, Sonya Hirshkovitz. He was a peddler and scrap dealer who settled in Chicago and then in Appleton, Wisconsin, where we went to look out for the Greenbergs, who were relatives of his wife. He started the first shul in Appleton in his home.

Ed Ressman had a brother and a sister. His brother was David Moses Ressman, who was a tailor in Nikolief, Russia, where he and his family made uniforms for the Tsar's army. David Moses would whip his children to say their prayers and then help tailor the uniforms. David Moses Ressman was married to Hinda Pessin, daughter of Harry Pessin, who was a chazan and shogut. Her brother, Nathan Pessin, was a magid, or storyteller, and they were a well educated family. Hinda's mother was Esther Skolnick Pessin.

Hinda was deaf, a condition passed on to some degree in some of her children. She was also blinded in one eye as a result of a freak accident. While outside one day, she was struck in the eye by a kite some children were playing with and as a result she lost the sight in that eye. She was also clubbed about the head by some Cossacks when she was a young woman in Russia, and this may have contributed to her deafness.

Ed Ressman had a sister, Ida who died in Europe leaving one daughter, Rose. Ed and Sonya had no children of their own, so they adopted Rose, who later married Mickey Schur and had children of her own.

Ed Ressman sent a ticket to Rose and his niece, Rebecca Ressman, so they could come to America, but Rebecca gave her ticket to her fiance, Isadore Bahcall, and he came over with Rose. Ed Ressman took Isadore Bahcall into his scrap business in Appleton, and this business later became I. Bahcall, Inc.

David Moses and Hinda Ressman had thirteen children, but only seven of them lived. The children were: Rachel (1865), Joseph (1867), Abram (), Louis (), Rebecca (1881), Harry (1886), and Leon ().

Abram Ressman and his wife, Celia, and Joseph Ressman and his wife, Jennie, and their children, together with Rachel's husband, David Beilen, came to America in 1902. Rachel and their children followed in 1903 along with David Moses and Hinda Ressman and the rest of the children. The Ressimans came "tourist class" and Rachel and the children came "steerage". During the voyage, the children were passed up over a gate to spend a little time with their grandparents. The boat, which may have been called "Saxonia" landed in Baltimore, Maryland. The families then traveled on to Chicago, where they settled.

The Ressimans founded a company called Acme Manufacturing in Chicago, which made parts of suits, but there was so much fighting within the family that the business didn't last. All the Ressman brothers worked in the tailoring trade. Rachel scrubbed floors for 50¢.
